Postgraduate Midwifery Program

The UQ School of Nursing and Midwifery now offers Graduate Certificate and Masters of Midwifery programs.

The postgraduate midwifery program has been developed to provide registered midwives with the skills and knowledge to fulfill advanced practice roles within their own clinical setting. Registered midwives are able to select from two fields of study:

- Complex Midwifery Care which encompasses the care of high risk pregnancies and the care of mothers and babies with complex needs;
- Advanced Midwifery Practice, enabling midwives who practice in community settings, or settings other than high risk care to pursue further postgraduate study in areas of advanced midwifery practice.

Graduate Certificate in Midwifery

The Graduate Certificate in Midwifery is ideal for registered midwives who do not currently hold an undergraduate midwifery degree, or the equivalent. In addition it also provides midwives, who may or may not hold an undergraduate degree, with the opportunity to undertake postgraduate study without making a commitment to a Masters degree.

Within the Graduate Certificate, students are able to select from two fields of study for specialisation:

- Complex Midwifery Care
- Advanced Practice Midwifery

There are 8 units of study in the Graduate Certificate in Midwifery consisting of one core course (Evidence Based Health Care), two field-specific courses and one elective course.

Once successfully completed, students are eligible to enrol in the Master of Midwifery program.

Master of Midwifery

Students who hold an undergraduate midwifery degree and meet the program requirements are able to apply for entry into the Master of Midwifery program.

For Further Information contact
The University of Queensland
School of Nursing and Midwifery
Phone: + 61 7 3381 1165
Email: nursing-midwifery@uq.edu.au
Web: www.nursing-midwifery.uq.edu.au

The postgraduate midwifery program has been developed to provide registered midwives with the skills and knowledge to fulfill advanced practice roles within their own clinical setting. Registered midwives are able to select from two fields of study:

- Complex Midwifery Care which encompasses the care of high risk pregnancies and the care of mothers and babies with complex needs;
- Advanced Midwifery Practice, enabling midwives who practice in community settings, or settings other than high risk care to pursue further postgraduate study in areas of advanced midwifery practice.

Graduate Certificate in Midwifery

The Graduate Certificate in Midwifery is ideal for registered midwives who do not currently hold an undergraduate midwifery degree, or the equivalent. In addition it also provides midwives, who may or may not hold an undergraduate degree, with the opportunity to undertake postgraduate study without making a commitment to a Masters degree.

Within the Graduate Certificate, students are able to select from two fields of study for specialisation:

- Complex Midwifery Care
- Advanced Practice Midwifery

There are 8 units of study in the Graduate Certificate in Midwifery consisting of one core course (Evidence Based Health Care), two field-specific courses and one elective course.

Once successfully completed, students are eligible to enrol in the Master of Midwifery program.

Master of Midwifery

Students who hold an undergraduate midwifery degree and meet the program requirements are able to apply for entry into the Master of Midwifery program.

For Further Information contact
The University of Queensland
School of Nursing and Midwifery
Phone: + 61 7 3381 1165
Email: nursing-midwifery@uq.edu.au
Web: www.nursing-midwifery.uq.edu.au

The postgraduate midwifery program has been developed to provide registered midwives with the skills and knowledge to fulfill advanced practice roles within their own clinical setting. Registered midwives are able to select from two fields of study:

- Complex Midwifery Care which encompasses the care of high risk pregnancies and the care of mothers and babies with complex needs;
- Advanced Midwifery Practice, enabling midwives who practice in community settings, or settings other than high risk care to pursue further postgraduate study in areas of advanced midwifery practice.

Graduate Certificate in Midwifery

The Graduate Certificate in Midwifery is ideal for registered midwives who do not currently hold an undergraduate midwifery degree, or the equivalent. In addition it also provides midwives, who may or may not hold an undergraduate degree, with the opportunity to undertake postgraduate study without making a commitment to a Masters degree.

Within the Graduate Certificate, students are able to select from two fields of study for specialisation:

- Complex Midwifery Care
- Advanced Practice Midwifery

There are 8 units of study in the Graduate Certificate in Midwifery consisting of one core course (Evidence Based Health Care), two field-specific courses and one elective course.

Once successfully completed, students are eligible to enrol in the Master of Midwifery program.

Master of Midwifery

Students who hold an undergraduate midwifery degree and meet the program requirements are able to apply for entry into the Master of Midwifery program.

For Further Information contact
The University of Queensland
School of Nursing and Midwifery
Phone: + 61 7 3381 1165
Email: nursing-midwifery@uq.edu.au
Web: www.nursing-midwifery.uq.edu.au